Stop Laxatives

Which Only Aggravate Constipation

Nujol is a lubricant—not a medicine or laxative—so cannot gripe. When you are constipated, not enough of Nature's lubricating liquid is produced in the bowel to keep the food waste soft and moving. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus replaces it. Try it today.

A LUBRICANT—NOT A LAXATIVE

SEEK LUCKIEST HORSE'S SANDAL

Nowadays when anyone begins to sing the familiar old ballad, "I Found a Horse Shoe," he is promptly asked whether he intends to nail it over the door of the garage or take it to the annual picnic of the Ulster County Farm and Home Bureau and use it in the horse shoe pitching contest which will be one of the many attractions that will be provided when the picnic is held at Forsyth Park on Wednesday, August 16.

"I Found a Horse Shoe" has helped to strengthen more ambitious voices and to keep more neighbors awake than any other song with the possible exception of "The Old Oak-ten Bucket."

For several years there has been a standing reward to anyone who can remember more than the first two lines of the beautiful song, which are:

"I found a horse shoe, I found a horse shoe,
I picked it up and nailed it to the door."

The managers of the Ulster County Farm and Home Bureau picnic hope, however, that the shoe is not nailed so tight it cannot be removed for practical contest purposes at the picnic, and are willing to furnish new and stronger horse shoe nails to put it back in its place after the contest. In some cases, of course, where the barn has been converted into a garage the horse shoe has been taken down and thrown in the junk heap along with the automobile shoe and inner tube which it helped to puncture along the road. The prevalence of horse shoes with projecting nails is so rare nowadays that the shoe, when found, usually is enough of an object of interest to be taken home where it carefully polished it makes a nice ornament alongside the family Bible and at the time of spring and fall housecleaning is also found useful in tacking down notices or targets. It is noticeable, however, that the horse shoe serves such a purpose only in families who do not belong to the Farm or Home Bureau, whose members have learned of more easily accessible substitutes for the tack hammer.

Enough horse shoes will be supplied by the Farm and Home Bureau management to keep all contestants busy in the pitching contest. There is said to have been considerable practicing with horse shoes in various parts of the county recently, and more than one member of the Farm and Home Bureau has reported that male members of the family could not be found around the house on the occasion of neighborly calls, but have been reported to be busy back of the barn. This statement, coupled with various mysterious sounds coming from that direction, have made it seem that there will be many contestants when the time comes to pitch horse shoes at the Farm and Home Bureau picnic on August 16. Some former champions have been seen by summer boarders at neighboring houses going to their barns quite early mornings (daylight saving time), and the boarders, who also are planning to attend the big county-wide picnic suspect that such early rising has some connection with the pitching contest, of which they have been reading in The Freeman.

Anyone who knows all the words of the famous ballad of "I Found a Horse Shoe" probably will be allowed to sing it at the picnic. There is always the danger, when a person sings the song in public alone, that somebody will remember having been awakened and kept awake by a voice having a familiar neighborhood sound which was practicing that song in the long ago, together with such midnight favorites as "The Old Oak-ten Bucket" and "Sweet Adeline."

There is a chance that Harry M. Epps of Accord, who will lead the community singing at the picnic, may include all these old-time favorites among the songs which everybody will sing, so that everybody may have a chance at the horse shoe, either in pitching or singing, or both. Anyway, they can pitch the horse shoes and perhaps win one of the prizes.

THE OFFICE CAT

He Ought to Go South.
I hate my woolen underwear.
I'm mad enough to howl.
It itches here, it itches there.
The darned itch seems to crawl.
And when I start to scratch some-where

That ain't the place at all.
Gradually, but Surely.
Woman is born without a skirt,
and she seems to be getting back to nature without a serious struggle.

Give Him Time.
"Dat's a fine new brudder yoh all's got, Annabel."

"Yas'm, but de doctor done tol' us he ain't quite up to par."

"Ain't up to par. Lan' sakes, alive, can't yoh gib him time? Yoh par is ovah six feet in his stock-logs."

Jack Dempsey isn't going to fight in France. He says so. He's the same old Jack. The championship hasn't changed him.

Took a Chance.
The Ulster county farmer was close and miserly. When the hired boy asked for a lantern that he might call on his best girl, the old fellow stammered, "In my day, when I was courtin', I went in the dark!"

"Humph," murmured the boy, gloomily, "And jest see what ye got!"

Women are poor marksmen—uh huh, we know all that EXCEPT when they are shooting a man.

"Ye Flappers."
Flappers "flapping" in the breeze. Little birdies in the trees, —Oh, what a sight!

Sixty years, look and dress like six. Surely this makes an awful mis, —Oh, what a fright!

Jazz a "jazzing" in the breeze, (I should think those flappers would freeze)

My legs are a shakin' so's my knees. —Oh, is this right?

Music stops after half-past "ten." Crank up the car, get in, and then —We'll call it a night!

Divorces keep people in circulation.

"The wages of sin is a swell automobile," remarked a Kingston man as he watched the successful boot-letter drive away.

A boy who worked at a confectioner's shop had been engaged to do the waiting at a small dinner party.

When some dishes of pastry were placed on the table the hostess said: "What are these, William?"

"These, ma'am," said the boy, "are a nickel apiece and them's four for a quarter."

Big Derrick Taken Down.
Workmen in the employ of the Michaud-Campbell Company Tuesday took down the immense twenty-ton movable derrick which has been in the old Bluestone building. It required a good deal of forethought and planning to take it down successfully. However, the work was done without any mishap whatsoever. It will now be taken over to the Ulster and Delaware yards, where it will be stored until the new shops are completed, when it will be installed in them.

Outing at Orange Lake.
U. S. Senator William Calder will be the principal speaker August 16 at the annual convention of the farmers and fruit growers of the Hudson valley to be held at Orange Lake Park, Newburgh. Congressman Hamilton Fish, Jr., will also speak at the outing. There will be a ball game and other attractions.

NEW ASSAULTS ON BIG REDUCTIONS BUFFALOTROLLEYS IN PRICES OF HUP

Strikers and Sympathizers Slug Motormen and Conductors and Cripple Cars on Streets—Jitneys Hard to Eliminate.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Buffalo, Aug. 9.—Rioting started again last evening when a mob of 500 men and women bombarded a car at Purdy and East Ferry streets, knocking the conductor unconscious, setting the motorman and breaking every window in the car.

The car, an extra, left the barns without a police guard. At Purdy street fifteen or twenty men opened a bombardment, and every window was shattered. In addition they pushed the car, slugging Conductor George M. Valley and Motorman A. J. Peterson, stole the reverse lever and cut the trolley rope.

Several street cars were stoned in various sections of the city last night. Spikes placed in switches indicated an attempt to derail cars, throwing up a mob by a shot in the hand of a policeman, marked the hands of peace disturbers on the main lines. Police were forced to use riot guns in order to stand off a crowd which gathered when a car was stopped by spikes in the switch. A Genesee street car detonated several track torpedoes, but no damage was done.

Jitneys are still operating, although ordered off the streets by Justice Peeley. Enforcement of the jitney ban order will begin in earnest today. Plain clothes men were detailed from all stations to act as "spotters." Cars believed to be operating as jitneys will be boarded and attempts will be made to gather evidence against the owners and drivers.

MADE TOO MUCH NOISE.

"Rumorist" Interrupted Broadway Residents' Sleep.

Editor of The Freeman:

As a general thing much sympathy is extended to automobilists, who in traveling have the misfortune to have their car go wrong and they have to "get out and get under." Contrary to this general feeling on the part of a number of families living on Broadway downtown was shown early Wednesday morning, when a large car broke down in this neighborhood and the party started to make the necessary repairs.

It is hard enough to be awakened from sound slumber by the noise of a hammer pounding iron, but when this noise is secondary to that of a person with a stentorian voice and at his best, the aroused neighborhood at first thinks there is a riot outside their doors. If this downtown man had the least bit of consideration he would have closed his mouth and let the other gentlemen who were in the party do the car without his intended funny remarks. A little respect for the sleeping public should be felt at all times.

A FREEMAN PATRON.

FORD, UNABLE TO STOP. HITS CAR AHEAD OF IT.

A Ford runabout following closely behind the Dodge delivery car of Charles Tiller, the West Hurley cooper, ran head on into the rear of the delivery car Tuesday afternoon on the Ashokan boulevard at West Hurley when the delivery car stopped. Due to the slippery condition of the roadway, the Ford was unable to stop in time to prevent a collision. The Ford received a bent mud-guard and the headlights were bent and broken.

AMERICAN AND OTHER BALLOONISTS MISSING.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Geneva, Aug. 9.—Exultation over the possibility of the United States winning the James Gordon Bennett cup for international balloon racing was tempered today by anxiety over the fate of Ralph Honerwell, pilot of the American civilian balloon.

Honerwell and Muxter, pilot of a Belgian balloon, were still unaccounted for this morning. It was believed that they had either been carried into some remote part of Roumania or had drifted out over the Black Sea.

Unofficial tabulation gave Major Westover, pilot of the American army balloon, 690 miles, and M. Bisnams, pilot of a French balloon, 625 miles.

Official notification of the winner will not be made for several days.

The Kiwanis state convention will be held at Poughkeepsie September 20-21. Lieut. Governor Wood and U. S. Senator Calder will be the chief speakers. Jules Brazil, song leader from Toronto, will have charge of the entertainment. There will be a boat ride to West Point and special entertainment for the ladies.

GOLD FIND IS REPORTED AT MILLERTON.

The residents of the village of Millerton, Dutchess county, are experiencing a new thrill as gold dust has been reported found on a farm in that village. Myron Puff, the village druggist, has taken some of the soil and given it the most exacting tests, and about twenty dollars' worth has been found. The soil was discovered while workmen were digging a hole in which to sink an acetylene gas tank. Men who have made investigations believe that the vein leads to a much larger deposit at some point not far distant.

Further tests will be made and in the meantime the villagers will live in prospects of becoming a mining camp.

Shutlis To Tell Why.

Paul Shutlis of Woodstock, Tuesday, failed to observe the sentence "turn to the right" on the warning standard on Broadway at the intersection of Railroad avenue and Greenkill avenue, and turned his car to the left. Officer Urban Healey on duty there noticed Shutlis' failure and notified him that he would have to explain in City Court his violation of the traffic law. He will do so on Saturday giving a cash bond to ensure his appearance on that day.

Lieutenant Clayton Bissell.

Lieutenant Clayton Bissell, of the U. S. Army Air Service, has just completed the first airplane night flight across country. He started from Bolling Field, near Washington, at 9:30 p. m., and, being compelled by storms to fly in a runabout route, arrived over New York at midnight. He used directional wireless to find his way, but on the return laid a straight compass course for the capital, reaching there at 2 o'clock in the morning.

AFRICAN COLONIZATION.

According to Dr. J. Albert Thorne, a negro now in New York but a native of Barbados, an educated man with a degree in medicine and surgery from the University of Edinburgh, there will be within a year an exodus of negroes to Africa, and this "beginning" of the repatriation of the race from the "Dark Continent" will be the fruition of 21 years of propaganda among negroes of the West Indies and the United States backed by such eminent white men as Lord Byron, Henry M. Stanley and the Archbishops of Canterbury and York. The article making this announcement in the New York World states that Dr. Thorne has obtained a concession of 10,000 acres in Nyassa and on the Zambesi River—"on lines that indicate the co-operation of the British Foreign Office" and that there "the first unit of 100 negro families" will proceed to "subdue the jungle."

The first thought suggested by these particulars is that if Dr. Thorne's project is to be even in a measure successful he will have to secure a much larger concession. Even within the present generation single Southern plantation holdings of more than half the size of the 10,000-acre tract on the Zambesi have been reported. The new "African Colonial Enterprise" is of interest because it points once more toward what many thoughtful and humane Americans from Thomas Jefferson to Henry Clay and Abraham Lincoln, have regarded as the natural destiny of the negroes of the United States. It is an entirely new proposition and the first of its kind, it would undoubtedly excite wide interest and receive large support, but both are likely to be lacking because of previous failures, or of small measure of success as in the case of the republic of Liberia, founded in 1821 by the American Colonization Society of which Henry Clay was for years president. Liberia has maintained its existence (only recently securing one more loan from the United States), but has failed of the success it might have attained because of the impossibility of inducing many American negroes to emigrate.

In view of their supposed discontent, the complaints of their leading representatives, and the nation-wide discrimination against them due to race prejudice, it has been expected by white men interested in this subject that great numbers of American negroes would be glad to remove to and build up in the land of their ancestors, but invariably it has been found that very few could be induced to emigrate. This unwillingness or reluctance on the part of the blacks themselves is likely to be the chief obstacle confronting Dr. Thorne's enterprise. But possibly the members of his race in the West Indies may in greater part prove to be more venturesome and less attached to the locality of their residence.

"THEY SAY."

An expression frequently used when a person cannot truthfully give the name of any man, woman or child, is "They say." It is threadbare, but somehow it persists and serves its purpose. The object is usually to spread a rumor and not get involved in a controversy as to the source. Then, too, it permits some one to start a story without foundation, which the purveyor desires to have carried from month to month for some personal reason.

As election approaches there will be rumors and there will be minute repetitions of "They say." Who "they" are is never disclosed, and it can be taken to mean many or few, or it can be taken to mean no one who carries any weight, or who has the courage to come out flat-footedly and say who "they" are. It is a gossip monger's practice and should never be valued at more than gossip.

Just now the first signs of what may be expected along the line of "They say" are being seen. Democrats, trying to tear down the accomplishments of the Miller administration, are resorting to this practice: "A well known Republican said." Then they go on but do not give the name of the Republican. It is purely a "They say" ruse, and, of course, does not live an instant.

among intelligent men or women. Miss Harriet May Mills, spokesman of the Democrats, who was defeated by the largest majority of any candidate on the Democratic ticket two years ago, is telling what women are going to do and is using the "They say" plan, which may have worked once, but, in colloquial diction, it don't go now.

What do you want to know about Nature Subjects? Send any questions of general interest to the Nature Notes Department of this paper, enclosing self-addressed and stamped envelope for reply.

Can You Answer These Questions?
 1. What is the difference between a starling and a grackle? Are starlings pests?
 2. Does the common wild aster give honey?

Answers in Tomorrow's Nature Notes
Answers to Previous Questions.

1. Can you tell me why the land turtle digs a hole with its rear feet about two inches in the ground? I have noticed several doing it.

The turtle were doubtless preparing a hole in which to lay eggs. The different kinds vary a little, but only a little, in the general method of egg-laying. After depositing the eggs, the ground is carefully scraped over them and sometimes so skillfully packed down that no sign is noticeable of the earth having been disturbed. The depth is to take advantage of a sun-warmed layer where the eggs will be hatched by its heat.

2. Are dancing mice trained ordinary mice?

No. A variety believed to have been developed in China by intentional breeding to perpetuate a "freak" character. There is a whole book on the subject by R. M. Yerkes, "The Dancing Mouse: A Study in Animal Behavior."

3. Please give me the name of the game warden? I know a set of boys that are stealing birds' nests and eggs.

We suggest that readers needing names of local game wardens should apply to their State Department of Agriculture, at the capital of their respective states. In many instances, readers can by examining files of Bird Lore, published by the National Association, Audubon Societies, and kept in most public libraries, get the name of the state member of the Audubon State Board of Advisors. This person would know the name of the game warden of his district. To the correspondent in question, we were able to give name of Audubon Advisor in his own city.

KINGSTON TENTH IN TREASURY CERTIFICATE SALES

Postmaster Congratulated For That Big Transaction.

In the report of sales of Treasury securities for July Kingston ranks tenth among the highest on sales—per capita basis—in cities of the first class. Delhi ranks eighth among towns of the second class. Palenville third and Bloomville seventh among villages of the third class. Kyserville third, Summitville fourth and Davenport eighth among villages of the fourth class. This showing speaks well for this section of the Second Federal Reserve District which covers large portions of New York state, New Jersey and Connecticut, including all of the large cities such as Greater New York, Newark, Buffalo, Rochester, Syracuse, Jersey City, Bridgeport and New Haven.

Postmaster DeWitt has received the following congratulatory letter from R. H. Roraback, director, Second District, Government Savings System:

"I was very glad to receive clipping from the Kingston Daily Freeman this morning and to know that you were smiling. I do not blame you, as a $12,400 sale to one family is enough to make any postmaster smile. I hope you will make many more such sales before the month is over. We always expect great things from Kingston."

RATIONING HARD
-COAL HERE NOW

Half Ton Being Doled Out to Each Regular Household Customer While Supply Lasts—Belated Rush of Big Orders.

The coal situation in this city remains about the same except for the fact that the bins of the coal dealers are gradually becoming empty as they are attempting to supply their customers with the coal which they need for immediate consumption.

The people of the city are now beginning to wake up to the seriousness of the situation and are placing orders for large amounts of coal with their coal dealers. The dealers have adopted the policy of supplying the people with the coal which they need for immediate consumption and stopping at that. As far as the household is concerned the amount of coal which can be obtained from any one dealer amounts to about a half a ton. Of course some people try to put something over on the coal dealers by obtaining what they can from their own dealer and then calling up another dealer and ordering some more coal from him. However the public will soon find out that this does not work as the dealers have agreed to supply only their own customers with coal.

It seems to be the consensus of opinion that if the coal strike ends within the next month that there will be no serious shortage in this city, that is under the one condition that some individuals do not try to fill up their bins and thus let some other person go without any coal at all. As far as the coal dealers getting any supply, they state that it is impossible to obtain any whatsoever. When the coal does begin to come in the same policy will be pursued as is being pursued at the present time, that is distributing the coal in proportion to the need.

ROSENDALE BAPTIST CHURCH
ACTIVE THIS SUMMER

The Rosendale Baptist Church is exceptionally active during the summer months. The Ladies' Aid Society has just held a very successful sale of fancy and domestic articles which netted the church a goodly sum of money. The Sunshine Society is planning for a similar sale on August 15th at the church when fancy and domestic articles will be offered for sale together with a supply of homemade food. Ice cream will be served. The Sunshine Society is also planning for a very high grade musical the last week in August when Madame Otteking, who is summing in the vicinity of Rosendale will give an evening's recital. This musical will afford a rare treat for the boarders as well as the villagers. Madame Otteking will be assisted by a reader and a violinist. The Sunday congregations are increasing and much interest is manifested in every department of the church life.

Pastures Remain Good.

Pastures continue generally good in the state, according to the feeding specialists at the state agricultural college at Ithaca. They recommend, however, that as the grass gets more mature, cows be fed slightly more protein in the grain ration. Cows on pasture should do well through August, they say, on a ration containing 300 pounds hominy or corn meal, 300 pounds wheat bran, 300 pounds gluten feed, and 100 pounds oil meal or cottonseed meal.

Famous Greenwood Cemetery.

Greenwood cemetery in Brooklyn, comprising 475 acres, was opened in 1840, and since that time more than 300,000 burials have been made in it. Its control is vested in a board of public trustees, who have for its maintenance a fund of nearly $1,000,000. Among the noted monuments in Greenwood cemetery are those erected in memory of Horace Greeley, James Gordon Bennett, John Matthews, the Brown brothers, S. F. B. Morse, Mary M. Danvers, Charlotte Canda, Captain Carrara and A. S. Scribner. The Soldiers' monument, the Firemen's monument, the Brooklyn Theater monument, the Pilot monument and the bronze statue of DeWitt Clinton are also worthy of notice.

ROTARY MOTTO MAKER A VISITOR

Arthur Sheldon Addresses Local Rotarians—Mayor Lunn Next Week's Speaker

Kingston Rotarians were honored at their weekly luncheon today by a visit from Arthur Sheldon, one of the earliest members of Chicago Rotary Club, No. 1, who is the author of the Rotary motto: "He profits most who serves best." Mr. Sheldon made a brief address along the lines of the practical idealism expressed by this motto, asserting that anyone who says he does not care for profit "is either abnormal, subnormal or has an impediment in his rectitude."

Reports of the boys' outing last week disclose that everything was satisfactory excepting the weather and that the only casualty was the pushing out of the side of a barn, which was repaired at a cost of $2.50.

A Rotary team to enter the horse-shoe pitching contest at Forsyth Park next week was secured, but there being three members proposed, an elimination contest will have to be held.

It was decided to hold the luncheon next week at 12:15, Mayor Lunn of Schenectady to be the speaker.

Robert R. Rodie, chairman of the Business Methods Committee, read an excellent paper on business ethics. A telegram of greeting from himself and the Montreal Rotary Club was received from David Burgevin, who is spending a few days in Canada.

ALLIED CONFERENCE GOING BLINDLY

New Discussions Crop Up as Belgian Set of Proposals Averts Collapse Following French Demands.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
London, Aug. 9.—Following are today's developments in the indemnity conference:

Belgians presented counter proposals to take place of French indemnity demands averting collapse of conference.

In addition to the divergence of views between Premier Lloyd-George and Premier Poincare, discussions broke out in the committee of experts canvassing the Poincare proposals.

A rumor that Premier Lloyd-George had consented to allied occupation of the Ruhr basin in Germany, was telegraphed to a Paris newspaper but it is not believed to be true. France, in addition to further military and economic penalties against Germany, seeks the right to separate action against Germany.

Italy and Belgium are supporting the British viewpoint on modification of Germany's indemnity burden. Officials are becoming pessimistic, fearing a deadlock.

Last Pottsville Coal Mining.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Pottsville, Pa., Aug. 9.—The last reserves of anthracite coal are being moved from this section to New York and other points. These reserves were held by the Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron Company. This information was telegraphed to Washington today by Mayor J. O. Bersler in response to government inquiries as to the available supply at present.

BRINK—In this city, Monday, August 7, 1922, James J. Brink, dearly beloved husband of Margaret H. Brink, in his 81st year. FORD CONDEMNS BOTH FACTIONS Money Kings of Wall Street Chief Enemies of Industrial Peace but Labor Unions are Their Unwitting Tools.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Clayton, N. Y., Aug. 9.—"Muzzle the money kings of Wall street if you would stop industrial disputes."

That is the remedy offered today by Henry Ford, Detroit automobile king and potential presidential candidate, in an interview here today with a correspondent of the Detroit Times. Ford, accompanied by his wife and Dr. and Mrs. J. M. Thompson of Detroit, are en route to Boston traveling on the Ford Yacht "Sialia."

At the same time Ford assailed labor unions as being engineered by capitalists and leaders of finance, who know that with their workers organized into units, they can be handled with twice the effectiveness they could be handled were they split into factions, unorganized and working alone.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, Aug. 9.—The stock market was generally lower at the start today. Studebaker opened 1/4 higher at 130 1/2 and then yielded to 130. U. S. Steel was 1/4 lower at 101. Marine preferred showed a gain of 1/4 at 64 1/2 and American Locomotive was unchanged at 119 1/2.

The Burns Brothers stock was strong, the B stock moving up 1/2 to 49 1/2. New Haven made a gain of 1/4 to 31 1/2. Cuban Sugar fell 1/4 to 26 1/2 while American Beet Sugar was 1 point higher at 47 1/2.

After the irregular movements in the first few minutes, many stocks developed strength. Mexican Petroleum dropped 1 point to 166 and then advanced to 165. Royal Dutch yielded 1/4 to 50 1/2. The shipping shares were the weakest feature. American International ranged from 36 1/2 to 37 1/2. Atlantic Gulf from 30 1/2 to 29 1/2 and Marine preferred from 64 1/2 to 63 1/2. Ralls were without feature. New York Central yielded one point to 97 and then advanced 1/2 point. Baldwin after falling 1 1/2 rallied a point.

The market maintained a strong tone all through the afternoon. Union Pacific rose 1/4, against 143 1/4 early. Great Northern rose nearly 3 points to 89 1/2. Baldwin ranked above 125 and Mexican Petroleum sold at 171 1/2. The market closed steady; government bonds unchanged; railway and other bonds steady.

Society Notes

Announces Daughter's Engagement.

Mrs. William S. Hogan of 150 Wall street delightfully entertained a party of fifteen young ladies at her home this afternoon, thus announcing the engagement of her daughter, Miss Ruth L. Hogan to Eugene A. Freer of this city. Pink and white were the colors that were used in the artistic floral and table decorations. Delicious refreshments being served during the afternoon. The young people were delightfully entertained in other ways, by their gracious hostesses, Mrs. and Miss Hogan.

A Surprise Party.

Eddyville, Aug. 9.—Roy Martinus was given a surprise Tuesday evening at the Crest House Eddyville, the occasion being his twenty-first birthday. Mr. Martinus was very agreeably surprised when he entered the building, unaware of what was in store for him. Guests were present from New York, Kingston, Esopus and Eddyville. The evening was thoroughly enjoyed, the greater part of the time being spent in dancing. Refreshments were also enjoyed. Mr. Martinus rendered a number of solos which were highly appreciated. Among the guests present were Mr. O'Connor and Miss O'Connor of Eddyville, the Misses House of Esopus and a large number of New Yorkers, who are stopping at the Crest House Eddyville.

LOCAL DEATH RECORD.

Recent Deaths and Funerals of Persons in This Vicinity.

William J. Keane died in this city today at his residence, No. 32 Tompkins street. Funeral notice later.

The funeral of Mrs. Julius Werbalowsky, who died Tuesday, was held this morning at the residence, 56 Meadow street and interment was in the Jewish burial ground in Montrose Cemetery.

Isaac Morgan, aged 77 years, died in this city today. The funeral will be held Friday afternoon August 11, at 2 o'clock at the home of his son, Edward Morgan, No. 5 West Union street. Interment in Rosendale Road Cemetery.

Martha J. Bogart died Tuesday, August 8, at Ohioville, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Stephens, in the 84th year of her age. She was a former resident of Olive. The funeral will be held Thursday afternoon at 1 o'clock at Shokan. The interment will be at Ashokan.

The Rev. William H. Mickle, D. D., a retired Methodist minister, who served as pastor of the Clinton Avenue M. E. Church in this city in 1872 and 1873, died at his home at Fishkill Monday, August 7, the effects of a stroke which he sustained in June which so weakened him that death resulted. He is survived by his wife and one daughter, Mrs. W. H. Doty, whose husband is principal of the Newburgh Free Academy. Mr. Mickle, who was 83 years of age, was born near Amsterdam, N. Y. He was a veteran of the Civil War, being a student in Union College when he joined the Federal forces. He participated in the battle of Gettysburg and other important engagements and marched with Sherman from Atlanta to the sea. He entered the ministry at the conclusion of the war. His first charge was in Stamford, Conn., where he served in 1866. Later assignments were Hamden, Roxbury, Second Church, Kingston, Forty-third Street, New York, Lexington Avenue, New York, Trinity, Newburgh, Spring Street, Ossining, and Washington Heights, New York. In 1891, he was made the presiding elder, now district superintendent, of the Newburgh district, and served for three years. The following three years he served in the same capacity in the Poughkeepsie district. He then went back to the pastorate and served successfully in Asbury Church, Tarrytown, Cossack, Waliden and Wappingers Falls and retiring in 1918, after 42 years in the ministry, went to Fishkill, where he has since resided. The funeral services will be held from his home on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock and the interment will be made in the Fishkill Rural Cemetery.

BROTHER BACON'S POEMS

"The other day," said Brother Bacon, "I heard of a family who write each other poems on their birthdays. The one who has the birthday doesn't write any poems, but all the others write a poem for that one."

"Then the one who has the birthday gets up after the poems are all read and the presents are all given and makes a speech of thanks."

"Of course," I am very much afraid that on my coming birthday the pigs will not have any poems ready for me so I am going to have plenty of poems ready myself."

"Then, too, I shall make them up myself, as I want to be sure nice things are said about me, and I'll be quite sure to say them myself."

"We didn't know it was your birthday time again, grunt," said Sammy Sausage.

"I don't believe it is, squeal, squeal," said Miss Ham.

"Neither do I, grunt, grunt," said Sir Percival Pork.

"No more do I, grunt, grunt," said Sir Benjamin Bacon.

"Brother Bacon is always trying to imagine it is his birthday time again," said Grandfather Porky Pig.

"That's what he does," said Mrs. Pink Pig.

"Exactly what he does, grunt, grunt," said Pinky Pig.

"Precisely what he does, squeal, squeal," said Mrs. Pinky Pig.

And Pinky Pig's mother said:

"But times are hard, Brother Bacon. We cannot give presents just now."

"That's true," said Master Pink Pig.

"We must be careful not to run into pig debt."

"What's that?" asked Mr. Pink Pig.

"Business, my dear," said Master Pink Pig. "You wouldn't understand."

"But if means, anyway, that we mustn't spend any money at this time, and more than that, we mustn't go without any food we may find, for we must always think of the future."

"One never knows how hard times will be or how hungry one will be. It's nice to be kind, but it's nicer still to be kindly to one's self."

"True," said Mrs. Pinky Pig. "I think that, too."

"I wasn't asking for presents," said Brother Bacon. "I was only speaking about birthday poems."

"He knew it was of no use to ask for presents," said Sammy Sausage.

"Listen to a Birthday Poem."

"Poor Brother Bacon. It's too bad that just at this time I'm so cramped I can't give you a present."

"Cramped?" asked Brother Bacon. "Do you mean you have the cramps?"

"Doubtless you need a hot water bottle and a cup of ginger tea."

"I haven't cramps of that sort," said Sammy Sausage. "When a creature says that he's cramped and can't give a present it means that at that time money is hard to get hold of and that he can't spread out with his wealth."

"Bosh!" said Brother Bacon. "That's an excuse. But never mind. Listen to a birthday poem I wrote myself."

So the pigs all listened.

"Many happy returns of the day, Brother Bacon may you live away!"

"You're a fine, fine pig."

"You can die, die, die."

"You are so happy and gay."

"Granting your little say."

The pigs all squealed and grunted and twisted their tails at the end of this, and Brother Bacon, without being asked to recite more (for he was afraid he would not be asked) went right ahead.

"This was his second poem:

"I like to write this verse, 'It might be a great deal worse. It's true, it might be better too. But it is the very best I can do."

"Well," said the pigs, "if that is so, there is no more to be said."

And then Brother Bacon recited one more birthday poem which he had written for himself:

"Oh, birthdays come and go. They really are quite slow. But when there isn't very much giving, it doesn't matter about birthdays living."

"But I'll have birthdays now and again. Hop for presents from pigs, children or men."

DELICIOUS MEATLESS DINNERS

For those who must, and those who wish to leave meat out of the menu, the following recipes will prove suggestive:

Mock Sausages.—Soak one-half cupful of lima beans overnight in water to cover. Drain and cook in salted water until soft. Put through a puree strainer, add one-third of a cupful of dried bread crumbs, three tablespoonfuls of butter, one-half teaspoonful of sage, one beaten egg, salt and pepper to season. Shape in the form of sausage, dip in beaten egg and bread crumbs and fry in deep fat. Serve with rings of tart apples fried. Arrange the apple slices overlapping around the platter.

Serve boiled potatoes with a cheese sauce. Make a white sauce, adding as much grated cheese as one likes for flavor, more for nourishment.

A salad of head lettuce sprinkled with a few nuts and served with French dressing will be good. The nuts may be omitted if the meat seems sufficiently nourishing for those to whom it is to be served.

For dessert serve any fruit pie but apple, as the apple has already appeared in this menu.

Another dinner may begin with cantaloupe or melon served as cocktail in cubes or balls, covered with a lemon or mint sauce.

A taste cream soup served with finger strips of buttered toast.

A nut roast, using two cupfuls of rather coarsely chopped nuts mixed as one does with the ingredients used in a veal loaf. Bake during the baking and serve with a highly seasoned tomato sauce.

In the same oven with the roast bake the potatoes with two small sliced onions, six tablespoonfuls of any good oil (either olive or corn), one tablespoonful of minced parsley and salt and pepper. The onions may be omitted if not desired.

Sliced cucumbers and onions with French dressing or a plain lettuce salad may be served.

New Cure for Fatigue

Speaking at the Institute of Hygiene, London, Dr. D. M. Corner, surgeon to St. Thomas' hospital, said that when a person became worked out, run down or depressed the reaction was due to acid in the system. An antidote to acid was an alkaline such as bicarbonate of soda. The amount to be given depended on the patient and should be gauged by the reaction under treatment. The use of gas for operations was slowly coming in again and would in time supplant the other anaesthetics.

Too Much Cut Out

"Nonsense. You can continue to charge $2 per seat."

"Not for a ten-minute show."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Not every ginger ale contains Jamaica ginger

All Clicquot Club Ginger Ale is made with Jamaica ginger. The ginger is ground. The flavor is drawn out by a process of dripping a liquid through the ginger. Then this "debased ginger" is thrown away, though it could be used, by another method, for making ginger ale.

It is not solely from virtuous motives that this is done. What would it profit us to save a little ginger and lose some good customers and friends?

So you can depend always upon Clicquot. You can be sure that only fresh water from bed-rock springs is used and that every ingredient of Clicquot Club Ginger Ale is absolutely pure.

Bergmann German Commissioner.

Berlin, Aug. 9.—Herr Bergmann, one of Germany's foremost economic experts, has been appointed a special commissioner to remain in London, according to the Lokal Anzeiger today. Herr Bergmann, who is an official of the treasury department of the government, has been a member of nearly all the German delegations to international conferences. He will keep in close touch with British government and reports daily to his government.

20,000 DEAD IN CHINESE TYPHOON

Shanghai, Aug. 9.—Damage estimated at $30,000,000 was caused and 20,000 persons killed by the typhoon which ravaged the treaty port city of Swatow, according to a dispatch received by the Shanghai chamber of commerce today from the Swatow chamber of commerce.

An appeal has been received from Hong Kong for a Red Cross relief expedition. The typhoon raged for several days. It was accompanied by torrential rains. The Ursuline convent, conducted by sisters from Montreal, was wrecked. The nuns saved themselves by clinging to beams when the flooded waters rose round the building.

GREENWICH VILLAGE FETE AT CROSSPATCH ANNEX AUG. 23

Fancy dress, confetti, colored lights and incense, are some of the things suggested by Mrs. Cross for the Greenwich Village Fete at Crosspatch Annex, Willow, Wednesday evening, August 23. Masquerade costumes of every sort from gypsy to royalty and from clown to satanic imp are invited and encouraged by prizes. There will be a prize for the most original and the funniest mask, also a prize for the prettiest fancy dress without mask.

Everybody is invited to put on their very prettiest clothes, even if they don't mask and make it a safe evening. Mrs. Cross will furnish confetti, incense and colored lights as her gift and hopes someone or two will volunteer to help with the refreshments so she can get out an evening gown and try for the fancy dress prize, herself.

Miss Bancha MacDonald, who is Mrs. Cross's sister, has lived in Greenwich Village, New York city, for the past two years, is spending the summer at Crosspatch. She will be glad to make suggestion on costumes and will be at the dance next Wednesday. It is easy to make very pretty and original costumes at home and they are preferable to the rented ones from the city. Although the rented costumes may enter for the prizes, they will have to be very good.

An automobile parade with colored lights is suggested as the opening of the fete.

ULSTER'S OLDEST ROAD

Is "Queen's Highway," Crossing Esopus at Fording Place.

The erection of several camps on the farm of Graham Parish at Lake Katrine (formerly Pine Bush) about five miles north of Kingston and on the land bordering the Esopus creek at the "Old Fording Place," recalls the fact that the road used to reach the camps is the oldest regularly laid out highway in Ulster county, and perhaps in New York state.

On June 19, 1703, the Colonial legislature passed an act for laying out, regulating, clearing and preserving public highways and directed that a road be laid out from the New Jersey line to Albany. The commissioners from Ulster county were John Cook, Jacob Aertsen and Abraham Hasbrouck. This road passed through Goshen, Shawangunk, New Paltz and what is now Rosendale to Kingston, then north through Foxhall and Pine Bush to the Fording Place across the Esopus Creek at the mouth of the Sawkill, then on the west side of the Esopus Creek northerly to Albany. As Queen Anne was reigning at the time it was named the "Queen's Highway," and is so given in old deeds. "This name was soon changed to the 'Old Kings Road,'" probably because no female sovereign sat on the British throne again while New York was a colony.

That portion of the Saengerles road from Manor avenue north to the city line now known as Albany avenue is located several rods to the east of where the Queen's Highway was laid out, as has been proven by old deeds, surveys, etc.

From "Kirsted's Lane" (now Maple Lane) north to what was recently known as the Reed House (four miles from Kingston) the location of the present road is the same as that of the Queen's Highway, so far as it is known to the writer. At the Reed House the road turns to the west, crossing the West Shore Railroad, passing a cemetery, and at a short distance beyond turns to the north, crossing a small brook, passing an old stone house situated on the westerly side of the road, said to be the oldest house in that locality and bearing on a date some 1661. This house was occupied for several generations by one of the Osterhoudt families. With a short continuation to the north the road turns to the west, passing the old Champlain home site now owned by Copeland Gates on the north side of the road, and the home of David Kicher on the south side. Thence the road by various course, reaches the Esopus Creek opposite the mouth of the Sawkill. At the end of the road a close observer can find traces of a "stone dock" as it was termed many years ago. This dock, or roadway, was about eight or nine feet in width and extended out into the creek about one hundred feet. It was built of large cobble stones, top-dressed with small stone and coarse gravel, and was repaired and kept in order by the roadmaster and taxpayers who at that time "worked out" their road tax or time, proving that the "dock" was considered a part of the highway. When the creek was fordable the "stone dock" was about four or six inches above the flow of the stream, although successful fordings were made when the water was flowing over the "dock."

REO Speed Wagon

A Truck That Will Do Your Work—Carry Your Loads

If there is any kind of work to which the flimsy light, or the excessively heavy trucks, are not fitted, it is the work of the farm.

Loads vary from a small lot of groceries to an overload of grain, produce or live stock.

Stamina and stability are the prime requisites.

No light vehicle made for smooth even city streets can negotiate your country roads and carry your loads.

This Reo Speed Wagon was designed expressly to meet your farming needs.

The Speed Wagon has the greatest motor ever built.

Rugged—built for hard work—all working parts 50 per cent over-size.

Here is a motor whose records no other has ever approached.

More than 600,000 miles is the record so far of one of the first Reo Speed Wagons.

Now nearly eight years in service—and doing the same work daily it has always done—averaging 175 miles a day!

That is the kind of truck you need on the farm—chassis, transmission, clutch, axles and other units, on a par with that matchless motor.

For all loads ranging from a quarter-ton to a ton-and-a-quarter.

Hauling over all manner of roads—city pavements, macadam, dirt roads—and trails.

At times you must over-load cruelly—alright!

In all such conditions the Speed Wagon will do your work quicker and cheaper.

QUOTATIONS AT PUBLIC MARKET

The public market was again well attended this morning by buyers from city and county. Yellow freestone peaches are coming in better and were good sellers. Corn continues in demand, several thousand ears being sold, the bounding house keepers taking them by the hundred each morning, while tomatoes that are running fine now show an improvement in demand and bring fair prices. For some reason small cucumbers wanted for pickles are not coming in as fast as they should and there has been a daily call for them. The market could place an order for 2,500 pickle cucumbers if they can be had.

The quotations for Wednesday are as follows:

Peaches, No. 1 white, $1.10 to $1.65 basket.

Peaches, No. 2 white, 85c to $1.10 basket.

Peaches, yellow, No. 1, $1.55 to $1.75 basket.

The slimy dark green slugs that make your leaves look like skeletons in August need thorough spraying with four pounds of lead arsenate in 100 gallons of water. SUMMER SPRAY FOR APPLE WORMS DUE Lead Arsenate for Second Brood Codling Moth.

Entomologists at the Experiment Station at Geneva are recommending a spray application of lead arsenate at this time to control the second brood of apple worms or codling moths. The time for making this summer spray varies from season to season, say the entomologists, due to weather conditions. The adult moths which lay the eggs from which come the second brood of worms usually emerge from their cocoons late in July or early in August. The exact time of their appearance may be determined by placing a band of burlap around the trunk of an apple tree. The worms of the first brood crawl down, the trunk and spin their cocoons under the bark or under other shelter such as the burlap. By examining the cocoons under the burlap from day to day in late July, the exact time when the second brood adults appear can be determined, declare the experts. When empty cocoons are found the spraying should begin.

The spray formula recommended at this time calls for 4 to 6 pounds of lead arsenate paste or 2 to 3 pounds of powdered lead arsenate in 100 gallons of water. This spray will not only control the codling moth, but also afford protection against other apple worms and curculios, assert the station experts.

It is also pointed out that with apple scab so prevalent in many orchards the addition to this spray of lime-sulfur will aid materially in checking the disease. The lime-sulfur should be used at the rate of 1 gallon of lime-sulfur to 40 gallons of the spray mixture in order to prevent serious burning of the foliage.

FRANK MAINES DROWNS IN N. Y.

Police headquarters was requested by the New York police department Tuesday afternoon to notify the relatives of Frank Maines, a resident of New York, that he had been drowned and that his body was in the morgue. He was employed for some time in New York as a longshoreman and on a brick barge and it is said he fell overboard accidentally in the river at New York harbor. Frank Maines was well known in this city and was a son of Nellie and the late Joseph Maines, and has numerous relatives. Undertaker James Murphy has come after the body.

TIVOLI MAY DISINCORPORATE TO AVOID ASSESSMENT.

Residents of the village of Tivoli, discouraged at the cost of running the village as an incorporated body, are considering disincorporating.

A taxpayers' meeting to be held at Masonic Hall, Tivoli, this evening, will determine the future identity of Tivoli.

The movement to disincorporate the village has been growing for many weeks. A petition has been signed by a number of the village taxpayers and presented to the village board. The trustees are taking their full 20 days before rendering any decision.

Some of the taxpayers feel that the expense of running what is now known as the village of Tivoli, could be cut down by disincorporating and throwing the burden upon the town, county and state as a rural community.

A heated discussion at the taxpayers' meeting is expected as the desire for disincorporation is not believed to be unanimous.

The motive back of the movement to disincorporate is believed to be a desire to avoid the assessment which the village would have to meet on a new concrete road which is to pass through it. If the village should disincorporate, the road would be built nevertheless, and the town, county and state would have to stand the expense.

CURRENT OFFERINGS

LABOR DAY CELEBRATION AT CROSSPATCH ANNEX

Labor Day is September fourth and it will be celebrated at Crosspatch Annex, Willow, by a baseball game, automobile parade around Willow Valley, barnyard golf contest and dancing in the evening.

The celebration will begin at 2 o'clock in the afternoon daylight saving time, by the automobile parade, followed by the ball game and horse-shoe pitching contest, otherwise "barnyard golf" with dancing and special entertainment in the evening.

If any of the baseball teams in the neighborhood wish to play, Mrs. Cross may be addressed at Willow post office.

It is the idea of Crosspatch to observe all national holidays in a friendly and entertaining way so neighbors may gather from all the towns around and renew old friendships and cultivate community good will.

An effort will be made to get a speaker who can point out the great and unappreciated value of our farmers, in feeding the whole country and perhaps suggest the extension of such organizations as the Grange for general welfare.

USE THE ELBOWS

Thin People Have a Natural Defensive Weapon.

provided by Nature as Protection Against the Aggressions of the Plump, According to Helen.

It was what you might call sylph-like. Or if you prefer the less poetic and more modern term she possessed the popular pencil silhouette. Those of her friends built on more generous lines openly counseled her against the dangers of frail constitutions and mentioned the lurking evils of tuberculosis, indigestion and nervous prostration, says a New York Sun writer.

Secretly in their heart of hearts they admitted they would willingly have endured all three to be able to wear a roused suit with the smartness that was hers.

It was Mabel, she of the generous curves and placid disposition, that finally drew her.

"Helen," said Mabel as she dipped into the chocolate creams and then dropped a juicy morsel back with a hungry sigh. "I think you ought to put on more weight. It really is sinful for a girl to go around causing as much envy in the hearts of others as you do. Now, when I was up in Boston I got a menu from a hotel that tells what you should eat to get fat and what you should eat to get thin. You can have the 'how to get fat' column if you want it."

The sylphlike one sighed a mournful sigh.

"Mabel," she confessed, "you might as well know the truth. I positively gorge on such fattening things as cream, butter sauce, bananas, potatoes and bacon. I naturally prefer string beans, sour salad dressings, lemonade and water ices. But I pass them all up. Because I long ago got over my desire to be thin."

She arose and began to pace up and down the room in the restless manner peculiar to thin people. Her voice rose to a tremulous pitch.

"Do you know," she demanded indignantly, "what thin people have to suffer? Do you?"

Mabel, who had succumbed to the temptation of the chocolates, shook her head blankly.

"Just take the subway trains and trolley cars that have those little seats built for two persons—two medium-size people. If a little person like me is sitting in one of them, what happens? At the next corner a woman or man who could qualify for Dimples in the circus gets on. And, of course, makes for the seat next to the little thin person. You find yourself simply squashed by the weight of the person next to you. A fat person, I have noticed, looks eagerly around for a vacant seat beside a thin person, because they know it's the only way they can ride with any comfort. I have seen them stand rather than take a seat next to an average person or one who rivals their weight."

"Must remember that," said Mabel, temporarily ceasing to munch her chocolate drop. "Never thought of it before."

"Well, if you try it let me warn you that the poor little stringbean person may take protective measures," said the slender Helen, and there was fire in her eyes as she spoke.

"That so?" queried the plump one, and her tone held polite scorn and doubt.

"You bet it is. Let me demonstrate."

The slender one sat down on the couch beside her friend. "Now, when any of these generously proportioned souls plant themselves down beside me in the train and appropriate their half of the seat and three-quarters of mine I simply manage to fold my arms. That makes my elbows stick out. And all thin people have sharp elbows. They need 'em. They are the only weapon of offense and defense the poor things have."

"And most plump people love comfort. So after they have had the elbows of our little thin helpless creature boring into their tender ribs for a few minutes they decide to occupy only their own half of the seat or else find a more comfortable one."

Character of Becky Sharpe.

Becky Sharpe was the chief character in Thackeray's "Vanity Fair." She was distinguished by her intriguing disposition, her selfishness, good humor, energy and cleverness, and her want of heart and moral principle. At the close of the long story she is left alone, practically penniless, but she has not changed her methods of forever seeking an assured position in the world, and the reader feels that she will find no difficulty in securing another dops.

Wrinkles That Form Around Eyes and Mouth

IN THE SOUTH SEA ISLANDS

Trader and Planter Not in Need of Pity, According to Writer in the Asia Magazine.

It is customary to waste a lot of pity on the trader and the planter in remote places—lonely outposts of civilization—but, from my observation, they do not need pity, declares a writer in Asia Magazine. The man who stays in the islands is fitted for life there; if he isn't, he doesn't stay, and, if he does stay, he can retire after 15 or 20 years, with a tidy fortune.

Of course, the road to fortune is a long and hard one. The average planter starts out with a little capital—say $500. He purchases a plot of land. The price he pays depends upon the locality in which he buys. In regions where the natives are still fairly unsophisticated he may get his land for almost nothing. Even where the natives are most astute, he can buy a square mile for what he would pay for an acre back home. His next step is to get his land cleared. To that end he buys a whaleboat and goes out to recruit natives to act as laborers. He needs five or six blacks. They will build his house and clear his land and plant his coconuts. Since it takes seven years for the coconuts to mature, sweet potatoes and cotton must be planted between the rows of trees. The sweet potatoes, with a little rice, will furnish all the food required by the blacks. The cotton, if the planter is diligent and lucky, will pay current expenses until the coconuts begin bearing.

Though his small capital of $500 may be eaten up early in the game, the settler need not despair. The big trading companies that do business in the islands, will see him through if he shows any signs of being made of the right stuff. They will give him credit for food and supplies, and they will provide him with knives, calico and tobacco, which he can barter with the blacks for the sandal-wood and copra that will help balance his account with the companies. And after the first trying seven years his troubles are about over—if he can get labor enough to keep his plantation going.

POSSIBLE LIFE ON PLANETS

Existence on Moon, Jupiter, Saturn, Mercury, Uranus, Neptune, improbable, Scientists Say.

The possible existence of life on the planets has lately been discussed in a most interesting manner by American astronomers. This is a summary of the conclusions of these scientists upon the question. It is considered that the existence of a high form of life on the moon, Jupiter, Saturn, Mercury, Uranus or Neptune is extremely improbable. Although Venus greatly resembles the earth, it is generally believed by astronomers that the day and the year of the planet are of equal duration. In that case no life can exist upon it. Concerning Mars, astronomers are not agreed as to whether the much-discussed markings are canals or merely earthquake cracks. There are no permanent bodies of water on the planet. The best that can be said is that, although the temperature on Mars is very low, there may be on the planet, to a limited extent, the conditions essential to life; probably only vegetable and low-order animal life, out no beings of intelligence.

Fur Animals Increase in Kentucky.

Furbearing animals are on the increase in Kentucky as a result of the protection afforded by the state game law. The raccoon, opossum, mink, weasel, otter and muskrat are reported in larger numbers by trappers who in the open season collect the skins in paying quantities. Until adequate protection was afforded by the drastic game law some of the species had almost disappeared from Kentucky, but under the new order the stock seems to have been appreciably replenished all over the state. The beaver still is found in some sections of the state and only recently a large colony was discovered in a western county, where the animals had dammed a creek.

Train Insects to Eat Insects.

An ingenious scheme for ridding our gardens of insect pests has been suggested by a Richmond entomologist. His plan is to train harmless insects to kill and eat injurious grubs and flies. Experiments which have been made met with considerable success. It is well known that certain insects are the enemies of other creatures which are garden pests. They lay their eggs in convenient spots, often in the actual nesting places of their enemies, and when the young come to life they feed on the eggs. Scientists are attempting to train these insects to feed upon harmful creatures which at present they do not regard as enemies.—London Tit-Bits.

Hair Dressing.

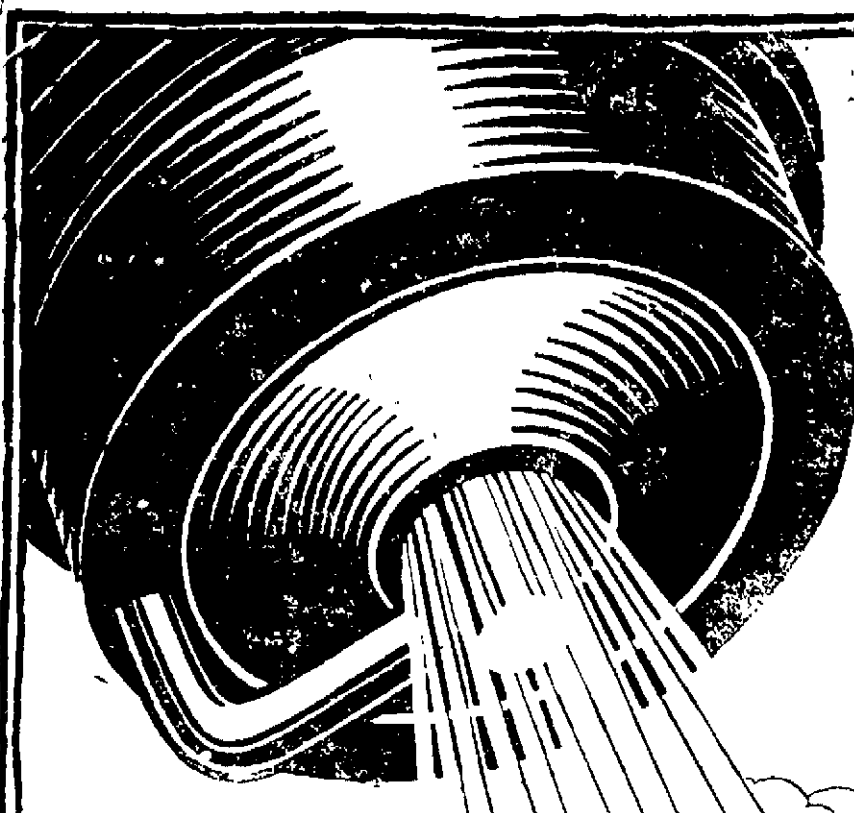

In France women are dressing the hair to make the head look as small as possible. The locks are pulled straight back and coiled at the neck with the greatest simplicity. There is a tendency over there to keep the outline of the head small, but the hair is arranged softly about the face. This is much more flattering to the average woman.

Disqualified.

A teacher asked, as reported by a London comic paper, "What would King Alfred, if he were alive now, think of the home rule bill?" The boy answered, "If King Alfred were alive now he would be too old to be interested in politics."—Outlook.

The Difference.

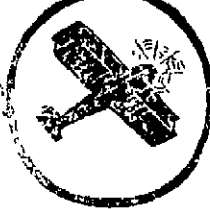

"The main difference 'twixt me an' my boy Jim," explained the farmer, "is that when I put in a day at work I don't feel like 'russin' round nights, and when Jim puts in a night 'russin' round he don't feel like 'workin' days'."

How the BG Obtains Its Results

The "hot spot" disk heats in an instant, and, with the electrodes and porcelain, is at a temperature that highly vaporizes the gas and oil at the sparking points and inside the plug chamber. When the spark occurs, the vapor in the interior of plug, which forms a primary combustion chamber, burns cleanly, and the instantaneously increased pressure results in a spurt of flame into the cylinder. This action prevents carbonization of the porcelain, scours the sparking points, and compels quick and complete ignition, with maximum power and fuel economy.

The BG self-cleaning plug for aviation motors is used in Army and Navy aeroplanes, and in the aerial postal service. Flies demand reliability. Why not profit by the same plug efficiency in your automobile motor?

The Plug that Cleans Itself

(BASIC PATENTS GRANTED MARCH 14-1922)

The BG produces not only a spark but a SPARK-FLAME—and the spark-flame does the cleaning—by scouring the porcelain and points continuously. The BG is carbon-proof and foul-proof. The engineering data at the left gives further details.

The spark-flame also provides quick ignition, enables every explosive charge to deliver its full power, gives easy starting, and saves gas by working at its greatest efficiency with an exceptionally lean mixture.

High Quality Throughout

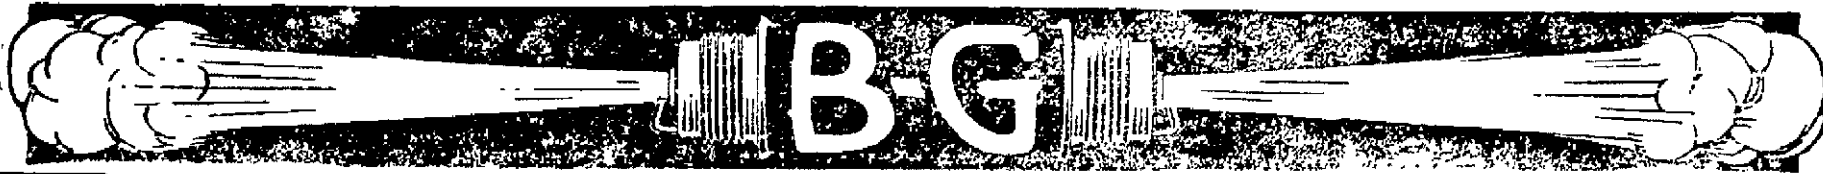

Engineering excellence is backed up in the BG by quality of manufacture. The BG electrodes are of selected nickel manganese, and will not burn or pit. The insulator is of Frenchtown "775" porcelain, guaranteed not to crack from heat.

Where Ghosts Are Institutions.

There is a conflict of opinion as to whether Virginia or Maryland produces the best and most reliable ghosts. Virginia claims pre-eminence in the output of Presidents, and Maryland claims she produces the best clams and oysters. These states do not dispute each other's claims in the matter of Presidents and clams, but they are sensitive on the subject of the superiority of their ghosts. In both states the ghost is an old and honored institution. No house can be old and respectable without a ghost, or a family of ghosts to haunt it, and haunted graveyards are numerous in both states. Notwithstanding the large colored population of the ghost-infested parts of the states, the ghosts are all white. They also vote at some elections, and all the ghosts that have come to the polls are Democrats. Of course, this is evidence that ghosts have a better understanding of what is right than many men who have not yet had the advantage of becoming ghosts.

"Mother Carey."

The telephone bell rang and a faithful reader said: "We all know that sailors call the stormy petrel Mother Carey's chicken, but who was Mother Carey? I've asked several shipmasters, but they're as ignorant as I am." Inasmuch as the ultramarine reporter was absent on assignment, it was necessary to consult the reference books, with this result: "The name Mother Carey is possibly corrupted from the Latin mater cara (dear mother), in allusion to the Virgin Mary." The explanation is plausible, at least. Sailors of old carried their religion with them even when they embarked on a voyage of plunder, and it is reasonable to suppose they directed their prayers to the Virgin when the stormy petrel gave warning of heavy weather.—New York Evening Post.

His Wife Cursed Peter Stuyvesant.

Peter Stuyvesant, governor of the Dutch settlement of New Amsterdam, which is now New York, married Judith Bayard, a French Huguenot, the daughter of a minister of that calling. She seems to have been a very remarkable woman, both for her beauty and social accomplishments, and for her practical good sense and sound judgment. It was his wife's presence which gave social tone to the Stuyvesant administration, and it was she to whom her husband turned when harassed by cares of state. He was notoriously insensible and quick-tempered, but his wife was able to deal with his humors, and maintain harmony in the household. She successfully educated her children in a land where good teachers were so scarce that education was a rarity.

He Liked to Be Kept in Mind.

The sultan of Trengganu was an adept at excusing himself for his slight deviations from the path of righteousness. At least so it would appear from his story, which Mr. Charles Mayer, his one-time unofficial adviser and good friend, tells in his recent book on the Malay Jungles. On one of my visits to Trengganu, he says, I spent several days with the sultan and discussed his problems with him. He owned a sum of money, and, knowing that he had money in the treasure, I asked him why he did not pay the debt. He was thoughtful for a time. "Well, I'll tell you," he said at last. "If I pay those people, they will forget about the sultan of Trengganu. If I don't pay them, they'll never forget me."—Youth's Companion.

Sea-Elephant Lazy Marine Animal.

The sea-elephant which haunts about the Island of South Georgia, located more than 1,000 miles east of Cape Horn, is one of the largest of marine animals, one of the largest and most contentious. His main business while ashore is sleeping and lighting bitter battles with other sea-elephants. The animal is so named from his great bulk, which, in the bull, often attains a length of more than 20 feet and proportionate girth, and his long snout. His mode of progress on land is similar to that of an inchworm, traveling entirely with the aid of his fore-clippers and humping his unwieldy body in what is said to be a very ludicrous manner. Despite his awkwardness, he can travel as fast as a man can walk.

Father of "Mother Goose."

Elizabeth Vergoose, the Massachusetts widow credited by many with the nursery rhymes and stories known as the "Mother Goose" stories, was not the first to publish some of the best-known ones, says the Mentor Magazine. Charles Perrault, a French author who lived from 1628 to 1703, published "The Tales of My Mother the Goose," in which Puss-in-Boots and other characters known to every child appear.

Quick Disguise.

"There's a man in front who says he wants to lick you," said the officer of the Chuggersville Clarion. "How huge is he?" asked the editor, who was in the composing room taking a proof of an editorial on the rights of a free people. "He's a great big fellow, sir." "All right," replied the editor as he whipped off his collar and tie, rumpled his hair, disarranged his dress and smeared ink on his face, neck and ears. "Go back and tell the obnoxious visitor that there is nobody on the premises just now but the galley boy."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Counting Mouse Hairs.

Determining how many hairs there are on a mouse is the task that R. R. Huestis, graduate student of the University of California, has laid out for himself. He pinches out a piece of dried mouse skin and under a microscope counts the number of hairs. Whether there are hereditary changes in tail hair is being studied. A mouse has two kinds of hair, not including the whiskers.

Serve Tea in Salt Mine.

One of the "stunts" for distinguished visitors in Silesia is to be served with tea in the salt mines, thousands of feet below ground. These mines have been worked since the Tenth century and the passageways are adorned with elaborate carvings and pictures made in the salt walls.

Frank B. DuPre, only nineteen, will be hanged in Atlanta, Ga., jail in September for the murder of I. C. Walker, a private detective, who caught him trying to steal a diamond ring from a jewelry store. DuPre shot down the detective and then ran down a crowded street in the heart of the city and into a hotel lobby, where he shot Graham West, Comptroller of City of Atlanta, in the chin as the latter sought to disarm him. He escaped to Detroit and was caught there after having written a letter to Betty Andrews, of Atlanta, for whom he tried to steal the ring.

ROAD BUILDING

LOCAL ROADS FOR LONG HAUL

Highways Now Being Improved Should Be Designed to Care for Increase in Traffic.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The United States is now in a period of great highway development, and in a few years many roads which now carry only local traffic originating largely within five or ten miles of the road, will be carrying a large percentage of through traffic, much of it coming from outside the state. This is the opinion of officials of the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture, based upon the report of two traffic censuses taken by the bureau in co-operation with the state highway department of Connecticut.

The roads selected were part of a fairly complete system of highways. The first census showed an average of 2,007 passenger cars and 281 trucks passing the recording station a day; and the second, 3,332 cars and 511 trucks. Forty-seven per cent of the cars came from within the state. Drivers were questioned as to length of travel for the day, and results showed average figures of 70 miles and 52.4 miles for the two censuses.

The average haul for truck traffic was 47.5 miles, some of them hauling a distance of 250 miles. Officials point out that traffic of this nature has developed in a period of something like ten years on a road which prior to

A Federal-Aid Gravel Road

1910 carried almost entirely local traffic. It must be concluded therefore, they say, that roads which are now being improved to form part of through highway routes should be designed to take care of a great deal more than the local traffic on which they are expected to originate locally with the coming of better roads.

MORE WAR EQUIPMENT READY

Large Amount of Lumber and Other Material Made Available for Road Construction.

Five million board feet of lumber and $220,000 worth of other surplus war material, consisting of steam and gas engines and machine-shop equipment, all unused, recently was made available to state highway departments for road construction. The material is to be distributed by the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture, as were large quantities which were helpful to many states in road building last season. Most of the lumber was intended by the army for the construction of a pier at Charleston, S. C., and is suitable for highway bridges. The machinery and equipment are stored as ordnance supplies at the Picatinny arsenal, Dover, Del. This material is particularly in demand and an allotment has been requested by each of the 48 states.

FRENCH ROADS BROKE

Some persons have pointed to the macadam roads of France as the type of roads that America should adopt. Yet these persons have, perhaps, not thoroughly investigated present conditions. These roads, which have been a matter of pride to France for centuries, are all ruined by the war. Each man devotes his time the year around to the keeping up of a few hundred yards of roadway. But, even so, these roads went to pieces when heavy traffic was put on them during the war. These roads were built for horse and foot traffic, and served that purpose very well, but motor lorries, guns, etc., cut up these roads quickly.

Prevent Road Destruction

In a campaign to prevent destruction of the highways by overland vehicles, the state department of public works of Massachusetts has inspectors stationed on all of the important traffic routes in the state for the purpose of weighing the loads of motor trucks.

Money Spent for Roads

During 1921 $800,000,000 was spent on highways in the United States for state county and other roads outside cities.

GO ABROAD FOR OPPORTUNITY

"Go West" Slogan New Phase; Better Chance for Young Men in the Foreign Countries.

Probably no saying of Horace Greeley, the beacon light of multitudes of three quarters of a century ago was more widely read, more generally followed, or longer remembered than his continually reiterated exhortation, "Young men, go West."

That, says the San Francisco Chronicle, was a satisfactory way of relieving what was then thought congestion of population in eastern communities, but it no longer answers the purpose. Today the place for the enterprising young man to look for is in some undeveloped foreign country. It will be a new thought to most of us that the time has come when we must consider emigration as well as immigration—that there are lands of opportunity other than our own.

This was emphasized recently by Frank L. Waterman, a name well known to those who do not habitually use a typewriter, with special reference to the centenary celebration which begins at Rio Janeiro, Brazil, next September. It has become a necessity with us as it has long been with overpopulated Europe, to seek outlets in foreign countries for the surplus products of our workers. The one way to do it is by commercial missionaries going to foreign countries while still forming their minds and staying there. That is the way Europe has built up trade in undeveloped countries. That is the way we must adopt if we expect to successfully compete with those countries.

ESKIMO HAS EAR FOR MUSIC

Natives of the Arctic Regions Have Exclusive Right to Their Own Compositions.

Kant Rasmussen and Fridtjof Nansen and also Hinrich Johannes Rink, who was sent north years ago by Lady Franklin to find her husband, have given to the world valuable facts about the customs and lives of the Eskimos. Christian Leden's unique contribution from the arctic regions is in the field of music. For years he studied and faithfully transcribed the Inuit melodies. Each Eskimo, he says, is obliged to compose his own song, and no person may sing the song of another without first obtaining permission. The mother has her cradle song, infinitely low and sweet. The hunter has his song of the chase, clear and bold. Even the bad man of the tribe has his song and it was quick and appropriately brazen.

Harmony has not been developed among the Eskimos. They sing only in unison. But their melodies are weird and beautiful, often consisting of only two or three motives, which are strangely effective.

It is during the long polar night that the Eskimo has time to rest in his igloo and sing his songs.

British Silver Stamping Explained

In this country the word sterling, when stamped on silver, means simply that the manufacturer declares the article to be made of silver eleven twelfths fine; but the British marks are used in London, a leopard's head, for Birmingham, an anchor, and for Sheffield, famous for its silver and crown. Dublin has the Irish harp, and Chester uses the city arms. The third mark, a lion, indicates the standard of fineness. The date, usually a letter, usually comes last. Since each city uses a different system for indicating the year when the article was made, it is necessary to know the "plate" of the town in order to find the date of a particular piece.

It Was

There was an explosion in the powder mill and the proprietor hurried over to ascertain the damage.

"How in the world did it happen?" he asked the foreman of the mill as he viewed the wreck. "Who was to blame?"

"Well, you see, sir," replied the foreman, "it was this way. Bill went into the mixing room and inadvertently struck a match. He—"

"Struck a match?" exclaimed the proprietor in amazement. "I should have thought that was the last thing on earth he would do."

"It was, sir," replied the foreman, sadly.—London Telegraph

New Cure for Fatigue

Speaking at the Institute of Hygiene, London, Dr. E. M. Corner, surgeon to St. Thomas' hospital, said that when a person became worked out, run down or depressed the reaction was due to acid in the system. An antidote to acid was an alkaline such as bicarbonate of soda. The amount to be given depended on the patient and should be gauged by the reaction under treatment. The use of gas for operations was slowly coming in again and would in time supplant the other anesthetics.

A Dull Life

"Do you think I shall live until I'm ninety, doctor?"

"How old are you now?"

"Forty."

"Do you drink, gamble, smoke or have you any vices of any kind?"

"No, I don't drink, I never gamble. I loathe smoking; in fact, I haven't any vices."

"Well, good heavens, what do you want to live another fifty years for?"—London Mail.

Rush for Ferry Once Grand March

Capt. Philip Reybold, who operated a passenger steamer—The Admiral—on the York river, between West Point, Va., and Baltimore, following the Civil war period, described in a southern paper the enormous difference between boarding a ferry-boat then and now, especially for ladies. It was an old custom of the region for lady passengers to wait to be escorted on and off the steamer. When the boat made a landing the ladies would gather in the saloon of the main deck and wait until the captain came down from the pilot house to lead them to the dock. He would approach the eldest lady of the waiting group and walk with her down the stairway to the landing, place her in the arms of a servant with luggage bringing up the rear.

Indian Burial Places Preserved

It is said that all the graveyards used by the first white settlers were old Indian burial places which had been used by the aborigines for that purpose from time immemorial. Where these Indian burial places were on the homesteads of settlers they respected these graves and they were never disturbed. The whites continued to use them as burial places for their families and slaves. It was a custom in the early days to bury slaves beside their masters, and a certain portion of the family plot was reserved for their use. The colonists in continuing to use these aboriginal burial places rendered this country a signal service in preserving from oblivion the last resting places of a vanished race.

How Egyptian Think

I chanced to be at Ismailia, Egypt, when an aviator was to make what was considered, at that time, an important flight from Suez to Port Said. He was to pass along the route of the canal. Everyone was watching for him. Finally he appeared far to the south, a little dot in the air that gradually grew larger. The Europeans expressed their enthusiasm by cheers and waving. Not far from me a Bedouin sat by the side of his camel, impassively watching the approaching airplane. I said to him: "What do you think of that?" With a calm, contemptuous look he remarked laconically, "An invention of your devil, not of your God," and strolled on leading his camel by the nose.—By a French Resident in L'Opinion.

My! My! Ain't It Fierce!

It was early in the morning. He, lunging with a massive portal, sweeping the interior with a piercing glance. Ten men, going to their places and came to a swift attention before his severe scrutiny. There was a tense silence—no word uttered. He calmly passed down the row of uniformed men standing at attention. Then, with a sudden energy, he swung around, he faced the waiting line. His face was dark and his glance was keen and stern. He picked his man. He advanced with a firm but cautious tread. He stopped, two feet away. In a low voice, full of meaning, he said, "I want a shave and a haircut."—Garroyle.

Town Built Over Salt Mine

The European locality boasting the lowest mortality record is the town of Kelberg in Germany, which is built over a mine of rock salt. The inhabitants live in houses made of salt, walk salt paved streets, and worship in a church constructed entirely of salt, where one may behold a salt statue. Kelberg is not an ancient city being scarcely more than 50 years old. The civic records are old enough, however, to bear evidence to the high degree of public health in the community. Although there have been epidemics of contagious diseases in the immediate neighborhood, the town itself has always escaped these maladies.

Life Seen as a Dream

"And surely it is not a melancholy conceit to think we are all asleep in this world, and that the conceits of this life are as mere dreams to those of the next, as the phantasms of the night to the conceits of the day. There is an equal delusion in both, and the one doth but seem to be the emblem or picture of the other. We are somewhat more than ourselves in our sleeps and the slumber of the body seems to be but the waking of the soul. It is the fixation of sense, but the liberty of reason, and our waking conceptions do not match the fancies of our sleeps."—Sir Thomas Browne.

Tide Rises Thirty Feet

In the Kimberly district of West Australia there is only one tide a day but it has a range of over thirty feet. The ships tie up to the wharf at high tide and when the tide is out they are left high and dry on the mud. This contrasts very strongly with the southern coast, where the tide has a range of only a few feet. This great range of tide is not caused by the water piling up in a bay, for the ports of the northwest are situated right on the open coast.

Wisdom for Wives

A wise old man, before parting with a young couple he had joined in matrimony used to slip a card into his bride's hand on which was printed this advice: "When you marry him love him. After you marry him study him. If he is honest humor him. If he is generous appreciate him. When he is sad cheer him. When he is quarrelsome ignore him. If he is slothful spur him. If he is noble praise him. If he is confidential encourage him. If he is secretive trust him. If he is jealous cure him. If he favors society accompany him. When he deserves it kiss him. Let him think how well you understand him, but never let him know that you manage him."—Boston Transcript.

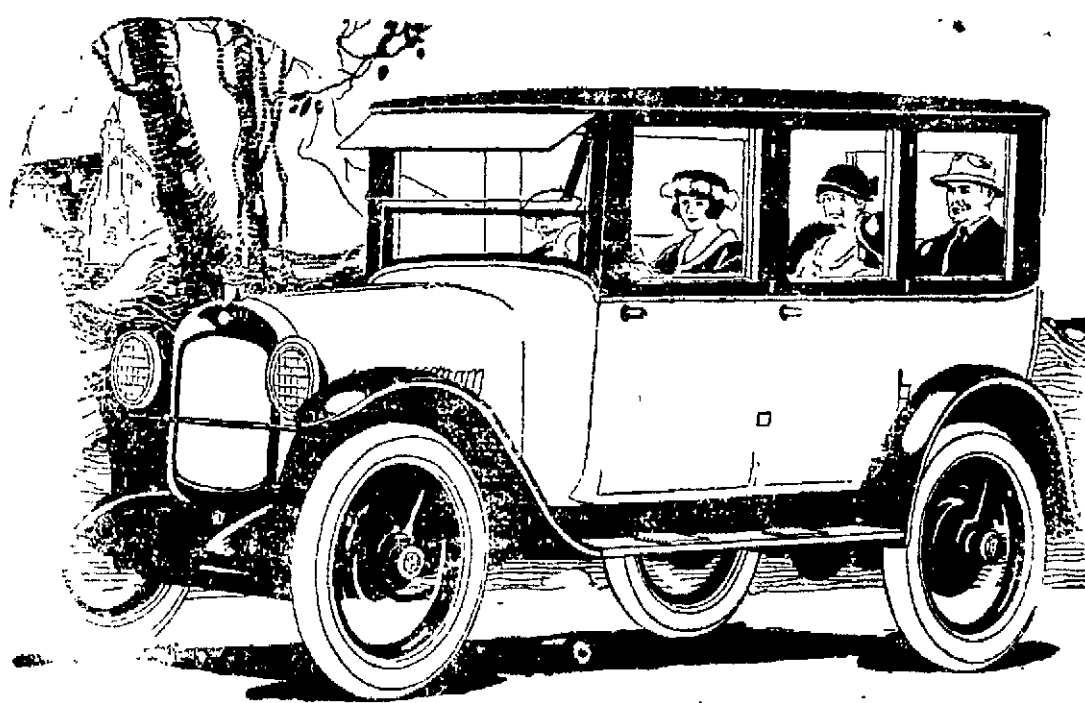

Alexander Ordered Army to Shave

Apart from its ancient religious significance, shaving had its uses in military purposes. The beard formed a too convenient handle in the combats of olden days and Alexander the Great accordingly issued an army order to shave. It is curious to notice the reversions of fashion in the matter. The huge monuments of the Assyrians show the conquering armies full-bearded and only the slaves and captives shaven, but at a later period it was the Norman conquerors who were clean-shaven, and the bearded barbarians who were the conquered.

M'GRAW STILL FEARS PIRATES

Their Sudden Spurt to Third Place
Recalls His Prediction Made When Season Opened.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, Aug. 9.—Speaking for the National League as a whole and the New York Giants in particular, John McGraw opened his mouth at the start of the season and quoth as follows:

"The Pirates are the team we will have to beat."
It wasn't such a flannel-mouthed statement then and it isn't now. The Pirates were and still are obvious contenders but between the start of the season and the present they have spent much of their time in the second division. They didn't belong there any more than Houdini belongs in the White House.

Just at the moment, they have better than an outside chance of heading the Giants and the Cardinals at the wire, thanks to a spurt that has carried them through recent weeks at top speed. During the course of this streak, they have moved up from the depths with startling celerity and this morning finds them in third place with a record of ten consecutive games won.

Anything is possible in baseball and when a ball club as potentially strong as the Pirates begin to win, matter of fifty points between it and the league leader is a mere nothing. The further fact that both the Giants and Cardinals, in their present state of mind, are push-overs for the first team that can muster the punch, is not exactly discouraging.

McGraw is not getting real baseball out of his champions. His pitching is worse than spotty, the infield is kicking games away and Douglas has just returned in a none too penitent mood from an informal vacation. The Giants have done little better than break even on the home stand and they are soon to take to the road where their inclination to flop is notorious. Certainly their immediate future is rather dark black.

The Cardinals, likewise, are making haste slowly. Their pitching has been uniformly bad throughout the present trip; otherwise they would have gone to the pace long since. Any winning ball club would have done so with its only rival playing .500 baseball on its home lot.

The reformation of the Pirates really began at the Polo Grounds a week ago when they won four straight from the Giants and hit so many outside the park the impression became general that they were playing the Giants five home runs or no run.

The answer to the uprising is three-fold. The Pirates needed a new manager because they couldn't or wouldn't win for Gibson. They got him in Bill McKechnie. They needed another outfielder. They got him in "Red" Russell, the reformed pitcher, whose hitting has been the sensation of the eastern trip. They needed an experienced catcher to get the best out of the pitchers. They got him in Walter Schmidt, who helped develop Glazner and Morrison last year and nursed along Hamilton and Adams, the veterans.

The Braves came from behind in 1911 after being in the cellar on Independence Day. The Giants did it last year after being 7½ games outside the lead with less than 5 weeks to go. Perhaps the Pirates can avenge their debacle in the closing weeks of 1921 by feeding the Giants from the same battle of cyanide.

ON THE DIAMOND.
